Earth day everyday not just April 22.

The significance of celebrating Earth day on April 22 every year was started by Senator Gaylord Nelson. He started the celebration to show other politicians that there is something that everyone can do to make a positive change in the environment. Earth day is international celebrated on the vernal equinox in March to celebrate the earth still spinning. The start of celebrating Earth day on April 22 spread widely across universities and schools and caught on after that. Every day is actually earth day and we need to be aware of the harm we humans are doing to the environment. By recycling, using less gas by carpooling or purchasing electric, and planting trees while using less paper people can help the earth and celebrate earth day every day.

When people start recycling they are using up less space in the landfills by making less household trash. Recycling does not only save the earths landfills but it allows for reusable materials that will serve the earth in a better way than just always throwing trash. If every family would reduce their household garbage and recycle the materials that can be recycled they can greatly reduce the harm from over flowing landfills. Recycling is a way that every day people can help and celebrate the earth we live on by not over using materials that are becoming scarcer.

Carpooling and electric vehicles are another way of contributing to saving the earth and the resources. By finding a carpooling system that works for your schedule you are greatly diminishing the emissions that is being thrown into the air harming our ozone and air quality.

Using electric vehicles will also contribute to saving the earth by needing less oil. By us needing less oil we can preserve the earth's oil supply because the demand will go down greatly. Electric cars can be charged and ran by green energy such as solar energy and wind made energy. If families would all find little ways to use less gas we can restore our earth.

People, schools, offices and other businesses can help the environment by using less paper. Recycled paper is also a benefit of celebrating earth day every day. By businesses going paper less they are contributing greatly not only to the preserving of trees being used for paper but also by not supplying people with papers to fill the trash that eventually goes into the landfills. Using recycled paper is keeping the need for more and more trees being destroyed to make paper. Less paper and planting more trees will help the air quality and provide habitats for our wildlife. There are many benefits to using recycled paper and going paperless for our environments.

By making people aware of the little ways they can contribute to saving our environment. When starting small we can all make a huge impact in the future of the earth and environment. Making life changes that can catch on with my friends and family and spread to their friends and family will greatly increase the way we use our resources and save our planet. By promoting ways every day and following the advice that I give out is a way for me to ensure everyone is educated and willing to celebrate earth day every day.

The ways I can lead by example to my friends and family is by making recycling stations in the town. We live in a very small town and there is no way for us to get our recyclables picked up so everyone gets tired of saving all the trash and recyclables. By making a place that we can all take our stuff to be disposed of properly would aide them in their pursuit of wanting to help the environment. Another way I can lead by example is by eventually making our house run on clean and renewable energy such as solar panels. Our house is all electric and we use no natural gas. I am leading by example in a big way because I am pursuing an education and career in Wind turbine technology. By recycling myself, going paperless, planting trees and carpooling when I can I will be set an example for my friends and families to follow. An example that in years to come will spark an extraordinary change for the betterment of our planet. Celebrating earth day all day every day is a great step in the right direction for the future of our environment as well as our youth. Our children will be able to see the future of all earth's creatures and plant life because we have worked hard to preserve it. This movement would help save all species and our children's children will not have to learn about things from pictures they will actually be able to see them in real life and experience the earth for all it is worth.
